Investigators are attempting to identify a suspect wanted for punching a private security guard at the Shaw Center for the Arts, 100 Lafayette Street. The incident happened on January 18th at about 6:45pm. A 66-year old uniformed private security guard encountered the suspect inside the Shaw Center after hours. The man claimed he was trying to go to the restaurant Tsunami but the restaurant was closed for business that evening. The guard was escorting the man out of the building when the suspect apparently punched the guard, knocking him unconscious. The suspect then fled in a dark colored SUV with a luggage rack on the roof. The suspect is described as a white male in his 20's, 5'11", thin, clean shaven, dressed in a light blue pull over shirt and jeans. The attached video clips show several angles of the suspect's dark colored SUV as well as the suspect himself fleeing after the incident.
